"I am the vine; you are the branches. If you remain in me and I in you, you will bear much fruit; apart from me you can do nothing.

If you remain in me and my words remain in you, ask whatever you wish,

Beginning as a despised, illicit religious sect, Christianity endured 300 years of hostility up until 312 AD when Constantine became the first Roman Emperor to embrace the Christian faith. A year later, the Edict of Milan was issued, legalizing Christianity. Later that century, Christianity became the official state religion of the Roman Empire. During this era, several Ecumenical Councils were convened to address theological controversies that were mostly concerned with Christological disputes. After legalization, the Church became less centralized and adopted the same organizational boundaries as the Empire viz. geographical provinces called dioceses with a hierarchy of officers to regulate their affairs: archbishops, bishops, priests, and deacons.
